vi.) Monsanto's knocking at your door, no telling what they're after

B A³ E

But the next sound that you hear, probably won't be laughter

E B

They say your farm is theirs, your corn glows in the dark,

A E B

Like something you'd likely find, at an old amusement park.

Chorus: G A

Well, Monsanto's gonna take your farm, what's yours is theirs, they just want theirs.

B A G (Esus4)₃ E

Kinda seems like might makes right, don't it seem like might makes right?

E

Between the banks, Monsanto says

A (F#) (end Chorus) (F#2) → E

I guess that might makes right... again.

V2.) Seems like one of their seeds, fell from one of their trucks

A Bmaj E B

Guess it rolled into your fields, so now you owe big bucks

B A E

Because mighty Monsanto knows, how life bursts from a seed.

B A

And they're just out to own, all of that energy. (Chorus, then Bridge)

Bridge: A E B

Where are the sleepy bees of summer? The butterflies have flown away.

A E B A C# min

Poison pollen and dirty water, the crops don't fruit and we still pay.... and pay.

E B

V3) Monsanto's gonna patent, every last timebomb gene

A

Then they'll have themselves a harvest

E B

of never-ending greed. (Chorus and out)
